

Recently, educational organizations in Washington and around the nation have received email solicitations from the National School Safety Collaboratory. The title, Threat Agreement Form, appears in the subject of the email. The message, addressed to district superintendents describes the organization's "...plan to become the central hub for the collection of data on school threats to schools", and requests superintendents to indicate their willingness to participate in their program. The image included in their email solicitation appears below:

Please note that we have no affiliation with, nor does it endorse this organization's program. Should you have any questions, please feel free to contact us at the WA State School Safety Center.

We at the National School Safety Collaboratory have been busy with our School and CampusTQ Assessment. Below you will find the 10 area of concern (Table 1) that cover the collection of information from the 43 subareas (Table 2). We used subject matter experts from law enforcement and school administration to determine the information we should be collecting. Now comes your turn to tell us what we are missing or what you would like to see added or expanded upon. School and CampusTQ will be the first predictive analytic tool we roll out as a part of a suite of tools for use by schools. Now is your chance to tell us what you want. Below the tables are two text question where you can provide your input. We look forward to reading each of your desires.
