  - iii. Begin to lay out a plan to fund them – esp. those which are mandated,
  - iv. Plan for December’s session; include the following points from Greg Lynch:
    - School Safety and Security - natural and manmade disaster preparedness, “implementation” and recovery isn’t adequately funded.
    - School Safety and Security includes the Mental Health of our students and there are significant gaps in both services and funding.
    - We lack the ability to plan, coordinate and communicate K-12 school safety and security initiatives with a high degree of fidelity internally with K-12, and with our external agency stakeholders.
    - School districts, especially smaller ones, can’t meet legislative mandates without additional help. Sending more money to school districts doesn’t necessarily address this problem.
    - The state’s school safety review should be comprehensive enough to include “today’s” (December’s discussion) topics.
    - Pending the completion of the state’s safety study, many of the state’s legislative mandates relating to school safety should be part of “basic education” funding.
